Wayne Bunce would have never considered himself a religious man, but during his daily life he truly lived “Love thy neighbor as thyself,” which is a portion of a Bible verse in Mark.

Wayne enriched our lives through loyalty, laughter, love, playfulness as well as orneriness. Whether you were a relative, friend, or merely an acquaintance, he provided a lot of joy in our hearts in school, at work, on the ball field, in boats or fishing docks, in our households and at entertainment establishments.

Even though Wayne never fathered any children, he had many kids. Some people, who had no bloodline connection, referred to him as a brother, as a son or as Uncle Wayne or Uncle Buncey.

We should not be mad or frustrated at God for taking him at such a young age, instead we should be thankful to both God and Wayne for how much love, fun and especially laughter that he brought into our lives. We will always have fond memories of him in our hearts and minds.

We became friends during the seventh grade, and thirteen years later, he was my best. man at our wedding. Wayne was one of the best friends I’ve ever had. He will be dearly missed.

May God and us bless the legacy of Charles Wayne Bunce!

“ Uncle Wayne was always laughing. I still remember when I was 16, he pulled my boyfriend aside and told him he better not cross me or he would have to deal with him. When he told me about it he cracked up laughing. He was so silly and such a good guy.
