“ Darrien Daily was my stepsister, my role model, and most of all , my reason for living. She was the light in the darkest of days. She always made me smile no matter what, and she meant the whole world to me. Darrien had seen her fair share of life when she died and it had been very hard for her. I myself have suffered from depression and I loved thinking about Darrien because I thought she had over come her depression and hadn't let it get the better of her. I was wrong. My whole life I have cared about other people above myself and I just keep wishing I had known so I could have been there for her in her darkest hour. I loved her so much. She is all I think about. I'll miss her forever.
