I never got to meet this wonderful bundle of joy, but this video is priceless. Ashley, my prayers are with all of you. I see your Mother in your face. I loved her so much and know you miss her and Kathi, also. Too much loss for the Myers/Maute family. God Bless, Aunt Marcia

Fragile colors of dawn mirrored in the abalone shell--

Although I never got to meet little Jayten in person, I felt close to him through my long friendship with his Grandma Gwen and Ashley. He was truly a special little boy and he had a purpose here on earth, fulfilled it and went on to be with the angels. My deepest condolences to Ashley, Jared and the entire family.

“ I met Jayten when mom brought him in to get his blood drawn at Integris Hospital in Miami a few months ago. I was a volunteer that worked at the front desk in the lab. I immediately fell in love with that beautiful little boy. He was so good and so sweet and that smile of his just melted my heart. When I saw he had passed away, it hit hard. I knew he was going to get a liver transplant and I just assumed he would get the liver, come home and live a wonderful long life. Please know that Jayten, that precious angel with that beautiful auburn hair of his, has touched many, many people in his short life. Jayten's family are in my prayers. I know this has to be devastating for them and my heart breaks for them. One day we will see Jayten and that is something to look forward to. I bet he is sitting on Jesus' lap right now and he's smiling that unforgettable smile of his. He's got the best baby sitter ever taking care of him until we all see him again. God bless and keep you, Jayten's family. You all will certainly be in my thoughts and my daily prayers as you go through this difficult time.
