“ *I will never forget the summer spent in Branson trout fishing. Some of the funniest and best vacations of our lives. May God hold you and wraps his arms around you as you greive and start heal. The loss of a loved one is like a bad cut it hurts and it bleeds, but with time and nurturing the wound scabs over. there will be times when the cut breaks open to bleed and hurt again. It will heal once again and many times over. Someday only a scar will remain.I have treasured those words from my high school priest for the last 7 years. hold on to your family and friends and the good memories left behind.
Love,
Joe and Elizabeth*
