“ I remember Larry as a very quiet and shy boy in school, but one night a couple years after graduation my boyfriend and I had been over to Stoners in Fairland and we ran out of gas. We also had a horse trailer with our horses so he jumped on a horse bareback and rode down the highway to Schrodgers house. Larry was coming home just as Mike got to the driveway so he got us some gas to get us home. He came down to the truck and when he saw it was me he talked to us for quite awhile. I never knew Larry knew that many words. We went to school together and I never really knew him until that night. He will be missed
